

Sacred Space Art Update

Fall greetings to everyone!

It is hard to believe that we haven't gathered for a class since late February/ early March! The seasons are changing, and yet we are all still dealing on a day-to-day basis with COVID-19 and its impact on our daily lives and schedules.

About four months ago I spoke with a number of class participants to get some feedback about readiness for resuming face-to-face meetings. The majority of responses suggested that feeling safe enough to meet for class was clearly linked to participants having a vaccine. Since we are likely a few months away from this being a reality for large numbers of folks, we won't be looking to schedule in-person classes before 2021.

I wanted to let Avondale know:

We have not vanished as a program and that behind the scene planning continues. I will be making contact with former and potential instructors to keep them up to date and ascertain their continued interest in being involved with Sacred Space Art classes.

We had such a positive response to classes this past Spring, so there will be a priority for offering those missed classes.

BUT, I would like to hear from Avondale as to other art forms/ topics/ projects you might be interested in either teaching or studying.

I would like to engage a greater variety of participants, and I wonder about the kinds of obstacles that people experience....childcare?....not driving at night?.....cost?... etc?... We have fun together in our classes and have learned a bit about ourselves and each other, in addition to specific art skills. So there is a place for you too!
